TITAN HEALTH CORPORATION EXPANDS SPECIALTY FOCUS TO INCLUDE ENDOSCOPY SERVICES

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA (March, 2006)—Titan Health Corporation, one of the nation's leaders in specialty focused surgery center development and management, has recently expanded its services to include Endoscopy. Up until now, the company has limited its focus primarily to pain medicine, spine/neurosurgery and orthopedics.

The decision to add Endoscopy services to Titan's business model was made after careful consideration and analysis.

"Gastroenterology is a specialty that really works well in an outpatient setting," said Marc Jang, Titan's CEO and President. "We think our highly efficient and focused model will be a good fit with GI as a whole."

There has been a surge in demand for gastrointestinal Endoscopy procedures over the past few years. This is due in part to increased publicity surrounding the risks of colorectal cancer and increased education on the benefits of receiving regular colonoscopies. According to Outpatient Surgery Magazine, colonoscopies rose 42 percent from 2000 to 2002. Demand is still so high that many patients have to wait months to receive this important preventive screening.

Clay Magness, Titan's Vice President of Business Development, Endoscopy Services, will head up the company's GI push. Prior to joining Titan, Clay was the Director of Business Development and the Regional Director of Operations for Amsurg, Corp. While at Amsurg he oversaw the operations of several gastroenterology ASC partnerships. Clay's first day with Titan was February 21st.

"I'm excited to help Titan branch out into GI," said Clay. "My background has helped me gain a good understanding of this specialty and the considerations to keep in mind when building and operating a GI center. Titan has a solid reputation for developing highly focused ASCs; I have no doubt that Titan's experience will allow for continued success on the Endoscopy side."

Titan Health Corporation is based out of Sacramento. The company currently has partnerships in Oregon, Colorado, California, New Jersey, Tennessee and Texas, as well as partnerships under development and/or construction in Michigan, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey.
